- March Treasurer's Report

A woman was sitting at home one night, when the phone rang. She glanced at the clock and realized it was long after midnight — who could possibly be calling? It had to be an emergency; maybe her mother was sick or there'd been an accident of some kind; she raced to the phone.

She was torn equally between anger and relief when she answered, because it was no one she knew — just a wrong number. The caller at the other end of the line sounded very young. The woman rather brusquely informed the caller that the number she'd dialed wasn't the correct one — and was seconds away from hanging up — when that young, uncertain voice said, "Wait — please!" And so she didn't put the phone back into the cradle.

"What is it?" the woman asked shortly.

The caller's voice broke. "I'm all alone and it's dark — please don't leave me." Ashamed of her rudeness, the woman felt a warm rush of pity. She talked for two hours with this stranger, this 12-year-old girl who was home alone at night. After her mother finally got home (she'd run out of gas and had no cell phone), they said goodnight. And the woman sat up until nearly dawn thinking about how such connections — expected or not — bind people together in a broader community of caring; and how easy it would have been for her to disconnect.

Let me share another story; this one includes a 12-year-old boy. John Fawcett was born into a poor family in Yorkshire, England, and was orphaned at age 12. To survive, he accepted a lengthy apprenticeship to a tailor. Then, while still in his teens, he heard the great George Whitfield preach and became a Christian.

While serving his apprenticeship, Fawcett became active in a local church and was often asked to speak. Then at age 25 (and newly married) he was invited to serve as pastor of a small church at Wainsgate. The poor people of that little village were able to pay very little, and much of Fawcett's pay came as potatoes and other produce. Once his wife, Mary, began having children, they found it difficult to survive.

Then Fawcett learned that the pastor of a large church in London was retiring, and he let the church know that he would be interested in serving them. They called him to be their pastor at a much larger salary, so John and Mary packed their household and prepared to move. But then, as the story is told, Mary told John that she didn't think that she could leave these people whom they had both learned to love — and John allowed that he shared her sentiment — so the two of them unpacked the wagon and let the London church know that they wouldn't be coming.

Fawcett, who wrote a number of hymns during his lifetime, wrote the hymn, Blest Be the Tie, to convey his sentiments and those of his wife to the poor people among whom they had chosen to live. Fawcett served that little church for the rest of his life — 54 years in all.

"Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love; the fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above. ... We share each other's woes, our mutual burdens bear; and often for each other flows the sympathizing tear."

Be there for one another; just as God is here for us!

Christian Education

It's hard to believe, but Church camp is right around the corner. It is June 16-21. Camp is for children entering 3rd grade in the fall through 12th grade. This year, there is also a spot for 18-25 year olds. This is open to everyone. If you or your child are interested in attending camp, please see Lisa Nolley for more information. On April 27, we will be hosting a bake sale before and after worship to help raise funds for camp. Another one will be held on May 11. On May 18, we will be hosting a soup and salad bar luncheon and on June 14, in conjunction with the yard sale, we will be having a children's carnival. Watch the bulletin and Builder for more details on these last two fund raisers.

Instead of having Vacation Bible School this year, we have decided to focus on our youth. We will be contacting area churches to see how many are interested in getting together for fun activities and mission-based activities. This is in the planning stages, so there is not much information yet. If you have any ideas for our youth, please see Tina Harper. More information will be coming in future Builder articles and the bulletin.

Thank you again for your continued support of the Christian Education Committee.
